The Importance of Mental Health Awareness in Schools

Mental health is a crucial aspect of our overall well-being, yet it is often overlooked, especially in school settings. It is essential for schools to prioritize mental health awareness and provide necessary support to students. By promoting mental health education and creating a safe and inclusive environment, schools can help reduce stigma and encourage open conversations about mental health. Additionally, implementing strategies like mindfulness exercises and stress management techniques can equip students with valuable tools to navigate the challenges they may face. Prioritizing mental health in schools not only improves academic performance but also fosters healthier and happier individuals.

Being Independent

Being Independent, Many think it is difficult. But, it doesn't exactly mean not being dependent. Being Independent means having the ability to make decisions, take actions, and support oneself without relying on others. It helps to boost your confidence and self esteem. As a result you'll be in a position to lend a hand to others. Independence can apply to various aspects of life including financial, emotional and social Independence. So start small, tidy your room, save up to buy things. They may seem like small tasks but as time passes, It'll make an impact on your being Independent.

Humanity

One apple fell, gravity's secret revealed
But humanity's meaning remained concealed.
As countless bodies descended from sight,
The essence of our purpose stayed out of the Light,
In the void of existence, questions arise,
What defines us,
In the depths we search for a greater understanding
Seeking the truth, our hearts

commanding.
Unseen and unnoticed bodies descend,
Yet humanity's meaning we strive to comprehend
In acts of kindness and compassion we find,
The purpose that unites us, a love that's intertwined.
Let not the falling bodies go unrecognized,
But let empathy and unity be realized.
For in the depths of humanity's vast sea,
We discover the meaning of what it means to be free.

Travel Experience

Traveling introduces us to new places, people and ideas. Traveling is important in life because it will open you up to a new way of living and being. You experience new connections with people and places.

Travel experience is a form of tourism in which people experience interesting facts. The architectural beauty, flora & fauna and wildlife of a country, city, or place. We wade through mountains, rivers and sea, witness history, geography, ethics and ethos of a place.

For me, traveling has been a wonderful opportunity to explore new places and meet new people. I have had the chance to learn about different cultures and ways of life. It provides a new way to perceive life, who you are, and how you spend your time.

Traveling can lift your spirits, reduce your stress, and improve your wellbeing. It connects people, regions, and religions. In short, our traveling experiences make us better, more cheerful and make our life adventurous and interesting.

Value of Education

Nelson Mandela once said, "Education is the most powerful weapon you can use to change the world." Today, in a world hurtling through transistions, the value of education and literacy shines brighter than ever.

Imagine a world where everyone, from all walks of life, has access to the magic of knowledge found in books. It's a place where ignorance meets its match, and bridges to brilliance are built with the LEGO bricks of words and ideas. Promoting literacy isn't just noble; it's a stroke of genius. It's not just about decoding words on a page; it's about opening doors to opportunities, insights, and a whole new level of street cred.

Think about kids in distant villages, with books as their passport to worlds beyond their wildest dreams. Picture eager entrepreneurs armed with the secret weapon of literacy, turning their light bulb moments into game – changing innovations.

But it's not just about individuals; it's about our global posse. Literacy is the GPS for sustainable development. Literate societies throw better parties, are more fair, and are less likely to engage in playground squabbles. In this age of information tsunami, where truth and tall tales ride the same wave, literacy steps in as our trusty surfboard, helping us ride out the craze. It empowers us to be snappy thinkers, active MVPs, and the life of the global shindig. It's about arming people with the skills to thrive in a world that's in constant remix mode.

In conclusion, let's all grab the mic as the rock stars of literacy, whether we're playing the student, the teacher, the parent, or the trendsetter, we hold the key to turning lives into a chart – topping hit. Together, let's make sure that the gift of literacy is hand – delivered to every corner, lighting up the world with knowledge, wit, and a sprinkle of humour.

The Impact of Social Media on Teenagers

In today's digital age, social media has become an integral part of teenager's lives. With just a few taps on their smart phones, they can connect with friends, share their thought and experiences, and explore endless content. However, the impact of social media on teenagers is a topic that deserves attention. While it offers numerous benefits, such as fostering creativity and providing a platform for self-expression, it also poses potential risks. The constant exposure to carefully curated online persons may lead to feelings of inadequacy and low self-esteem. Moreover, the addictive nature of social media can negatively affect academic performance and mental well-being. It is crucial for teenagers to strike a balance between the virtual and real world, and for parents and educators to guide them in navigating the digital landscape responsibly.

Falling is not Failing ..

I threw my pencil down losing hope,
Left my work half done
trying to do what I'm doing
but then just lost scope.

A thought come into my mind, then I realised, don't just think you're trapped, try to open the door, In life, we might even go down to the bottom of the sea but that doesn't mean we can't get back to the shore.

There is nothing that we can't do
Every problem has a solution too
don't just put your mind, do it with your heart as well
then you'll see what you can do ahead.

Not everyone can be known to the world,
Nor have a mind like Einstein,
But just keep trying and
Pick up that pencil like how I picked mine.

The Smile

There is a smile of love
And there is a smile of deceit
And there is a smile of smiles
In which these two smiles meet

And there is a brown of hate
And there is a brown of disdain
And there is a brown of browns
Which you to forget in vain

A smile cost nothing but gives much you wondered in my life. You are the smile

Her Label

The little girl being the joy
Of her own, moving around
Jumping and running and walking and
Laughing wished to only soar high and touch
Those white fluffy candy like clouds.

The maturing teenage girl spent her hours
With a thought of being a free bird in that
Blue space which she started into.

She discussed the chaos, confusion
Anxiety, trauma and pressure with a darker
Blue version in the night.
She wanted to be like the epitome of the Beauty dressed in white in the centre.
The growing desire to touch it, feel it and Find her shared secrets.

She was an astrophile?? She wasn't definable.
Her desire and obsession to touch it grew will it shattered.
Heartbreak you call it?? She called it the end.
She was told she wouldn't be able to touch
It but sure she did find a way.
The sensation of witnessing the golden Luminous city down,
With the best view from the cockpit,
Her cockpit.
From the freshest of mornings to greatest of eves,
From blue, to pink, to orange, to grey
She witnessed it all from the height.

Yes she conquered it.
She soared through the candy like clouds,
She found her obliterated secrets.,
She finally became her own sky's pride, her own sky's centre.

She labeled herself, not as a dreamer,
But as an achiever of her dream.
Her label read "pilot"
